A competitive procedure, based on qualifications and an interview, is hereby announced to appoint a self-employed worker for a period of 26 months (1° June 2026 - 31 July 2028) to support the “Sapience, Symbols, Preliteracy and Code Evolution” Project in order to meet the needs of the Classical Philology and Italian Studies Department.

IL RESPONSABILE DEL PROCEDIMENTO Dott.ssa Luana Izzo

Via Zamboni, 32 | 40126 Bologna | Italia | tel. + 39 051 2098551 | luana.izzo@unibo.it

Article 1
Project for which the appointment is required.
Duration, scope and location of the appointment.

The appointment will be for a period of 26 months (1° June 2026 - 31 July 2028) with an indicative annual commitment of approximately 1.400 hours.

Project and objectives

The collaboration is part of the research project “FIS2 SAPIENCE Symbols, Preliteracy and Code Evolution” (<https://www.sapience-fis.com>), which aims to reconstruct the origins of prehistoric graphic codes by analyzing the long-term processes of production of symbols and graphic codes created, selected, manipulated, and transmitted by preliterate communities at a global level. The project’s objective is to analyze these codes from cognitive, archaeological, semiotic, and anthropological perspectives, both within individual contexts and comparatively.

The collaboration aims to contribute to the definition of an experimental approach to graphogenesis and to the creation of graphic codes in contexts with varying levels of exposure to literacy.

Scope of the appointment

The subject of the assignment concerns the implementation of “An experimental approach to graphogenesis and the creation of graphic codes in contexts with varying levels of exposure to literacy or alphabetization.”

The collaboration consists in the development and definition of experimental conditions within WP3 of the SAPIENCE project, through: the preparation of the first mission and the analysis and interpretation of the results obtained; the preparation of the second mission and the analysis of the data collected; the systematic comparison between the results of the two missions; and the development and adaptation of experimental conditions for subsequent missions.

The consultancy activity for the first phase (months 1–9 of the contract) consists in the development and definition of experimental conditions within WP3 of the SAPIENCE project. Experimental activities will initially be developed in Western contexts (English-, Italian-, and/or Dutch-speaking participants), in order to test and calibrate the protocols in environments characterized by high levels of literacy and familiarity with experimental settings. The Consultant will contribute to the analysis of the initial results, the identification of any misunderstandings by participants, the evaluation of unexpected or irrelevant outcomes, and the comparison between oral and written instructions. Based on these analyses, pilot experiments will be designed and conducted with the aim of optimizing the experimental conditions. The Consultant must also be able to anticipate potential methodological issues and propose any additional control conditions.

In parallel, the Consultant will be responsible for the preparation of the first field mission to the Maldives. In this phase, the Consultant will support the adaptation, translation, and optimization of the experiment in collaboration with local partners, coordinate the preparatory process, participate in the field mission, contribute to the execution of the experiments, and ensure coordination with local counterparts.

Within this first period, the publication of the results obtained from European samples is planned. The Consultant will provide advice on the selection of publication venues, participate in scientific writing, and contribute as a co-author to the content of the publications.

In the second phase (months 10–18 of the contract), the Consultant’s activities will mainly concern the analysis and interpretation of the results collected in the Maldives and the preparation of the second mission to the Caroline Islands. The analysis of the results from the first mission will make it possible to determine whether a second mission to the Maldives is necessary, whether the sample can be expanded, and whether modifications to the experimental conditions should be introduced. The decision regarding a possible return to the field will be based on a comprehensive and thorough evaluation of the collected data.

The preparation of the second research site, the Caroline Islands, will require organizational and scientific efforts including advising on the process of obtaining research permits, adapting the experimental protocol to the new context, participating in the field mission, providing logistical and scientific support and coordination, and collaborating in the execution of the experiments.

In the third period (months 19–26 of the contract), activities will focus on the analysis of the data collected in the Caroline Islands and their systematic comparison with the results from the Maldives.

The possible need for further data collection or for repeating the experiments under adapted conditions will be assessed. Where necessary, the Consultant will participate in any additional missions to one of the two previous sites, contributing to the execution of the experiments and coordination with local counterparts.

In parallel, the Consultant will contribute to the development and adaptation of experimental conditions in Japan (Okinawa archipelago) and China. While not directly participating in the field missions, the Consultant will provide ongoing scientific input in anticipating potential methodological issues and in the analysis and comparison of data.

Also in this phase, the Consultant will assist in selecting publication venues and contribute to drafting and defining the interpretative framework of the publications.
